MINISTRY OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Chile is a global agri-food powerhouse leading the rankings as the largest fresh fruit exporter in the southern hemisphere, fourth largest wine exporter by volume worldwide and second largest exporter of salmon in the planet. The country has a renowned tradition as an exporting nation that looks after high quality, safe and stable productions. In recent year and as a response to consumer´s global trends in search for a healthier diet with more options and added attributes, Chilean entrepreneurs and companies have been generating an increasingly broader range of products that includes functional foods, nutraceuticals, ecological (organic), free from, vegans, plant based, among others. At the same time, businesses are increasingly incorporating more technology, R&D and disruptive innovation in their processes, applying artificial intelligence, biotechnology and circular economy concepts in their processes to produce better food, supplies and state-of-the-art technology, thus contributing to create a more sustainable food industry, with healthier products and with a positive impact on the environment and communities.
